

C. of C. Industrial Bureau Outlines Plan of Work

Ways in Which City's Advantages Can Be Brought to Attention of Industrial Concerns Which Are Desirable Here Discussed in Important Report Adopted Monday Night—Other Bureaus Appointed Under Reorganization Plan to Meet This Week.

The Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce met at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway on Monday evening and adopted the report submitted by Vice-Chairman T. A. Borby. Within a few days Chairman Baltz will appoint the sub-committees and the work of the bureau will progress rapidly.

Each of the other bureaus will meet during the present week to consider plans of work and the directors of the chamber predict a year of work accomplished that will be of great benefit to the entire city.

Industrial Bureau Report.
The report adopted Monday night was as follows:

Nov. 2, 1925.
Mr. Chairman and Members of the Industrial Bureau:
The early part of this year the Kingston Chamber of Commerce launched a membership drive and put forth considerable effort to increase its number of members. The campaign closed very successfully June 25th, with an addition of 228 members, bringing the total Kingston Chamber of Commerce membership up to 504.

The activities of the Chamber of Commerce to increase the membership were based on a definite plan. This plan in general comprised the forming of five divisions or bureaus, viz:

First—Civic Bureau.
Second—Agricultural Bureau.
Third—Commercial Bureau.
Fourth—Industrial and Transportation Bureau.
Fifth—Publicity Bureau.

Each of these bureaus are organized by electing a chairman, vice-chairman or secretary for the purpose of developing and carrying out a certain program which would tend to direct the efforts of the bureau along specific lines of endeavor. The opinion was that five bureaus properly organized and energetically working and following a definite plan, would certainly result in a bigger and better Kingston.

Personnel of these bureaus were recruited from the total membership of the Chamber of Commerce, and it is hoped that each and every member will do his part toward the effort being put forward.

On September 1 a meeting was called for the purpose of organizing the Industrial Bureau. This bureau has a membership of some 95 names, all of which were notified and requested to be present at this meeting. Out of this number there were only about 15 members who attended the meeting. While this showing was anything but encouraging the members present did accomplish considerable in the way of organizing and had some very interesting discussions on the outlining of a definite or precise program. C. A. Baltz was elected chairman and T. A. Corby, vice-chairman.

A suggestion made at the meeting with general approval was that a committee be appointed to investigate and report on the following:

First. Take and compile a census of the different manufacturing concerns now operating in Kingston, showing the number of employees and their labor classifications. Secure through the newspapers or other means the number of unemployed and their classifications.

Second. Investigate our natural resources, cement rock, sand for glass manufacture, etc.

3rd. Look into the prospects for securing a canning industry or cold storage plant.

4th. Investigate shipping facilities—rail and water rates.

5th. Investigate the prospects of accommodating ocean going vessels at our waterfront with the prospect of handling re-conditioning of same.

6th. List in some manner the products that are now manufactured here with the thought of creating a better market for the products.

7th. Investigate the foregoing. It is quite evident that a more definite program should be formulated and followed if it is hoped that the desired results can be accomplished. With this thought in mind, the following plan was submitted for your approval:

1st. Submitting for your approval a proposed plan which if nothing more may lead to a more complete plan and final accomplishment.

In general this Industrial Bureau can be of greater service to the Chamber of Commerce and the city of Kingston by:

1st. Securing additional industries for the city.
2nd. Aiding the manufacturing concerns already here in such a way that their business may be increased and their demand for labor greater.

great magnitude and offers many problems.

The first subject or that of securing new industries for the city may be approached from several angles. One plan would be to go into a rather extensive advertising campaign, similar to numerous other cities throughout the country, setting forth the advantages Kingston has to offer for the location of prospective concerns. This plan would require considerable money to carry out with any degree of success. As we are not financially in position to carry out such a plan, we are forced to seek some other plan whereby the desired results may be expected at a small expense.

Analyzing the problem a little further, it takes the same appearance as that of a man out of work looking for a position. The man looking for a job or a position wishes to sell his services. He probably goes about this task first by writing to different concerns who might be able to use a man with his knowledge and training; second, he would likely advertise for a position in several of the trade journals, and third, he would not doubt consult the "want ads" for men of his experience.

It is the writer's suggestion that we adopt the same principle in trying to secure a big job or big position for Kingston.

1st. Let us pick out the names of say five hundred manufacturing concerns in or about New York city. Discretion, of course, would be used in listing these concerns as to their raw material requirements, their manufactured product and the type of labor they require, so that it would be fair to assume that this list represented concerns which would be desirable and could locate here.

2nd. The names of the presidents or executives of these concerns would next be placed on the mailing list.

3rd. Prepare a letter to go forward under the signature of the president of the Chamber of Commerce. This letter would be written along business lines and would in brief outline seven or eight advantages Kingston has to offer. It would also carry inquiry whether or not the person it was directed to would be interested in having our representative call and discuss the matter first hand. The sending out of the number of these letters could be increased or reduced as the members might adopt. Using 500 concerns as a basis it would seem fair to assume that one per cent of this amount might be interested and that we might actually secure one concern or 1-5 of one per cent.

The securing of one concern would be going a long way toward the start of our accomplishment.

The second problem or that of aiding the manufacturing concerns already here, to increase their business, is a manner that would probably differ with each of the concerns. Before setting up any definite plan it might be well to have a committee appointed and interview different concerns in the city, finding out if they would be interested in securing help from the Industrial Bureau along the lines of helping them to develop a greater market or offering help with certain problems that they have met with.

In connection with this Bureau's work, we should have available certain data which is listed under the seven general headings.

1st. Transportation—Rail—Water.
Rates of raw material to Kingston, rates of finished products from Kingston to other shipping points.

2nd. Land and Floor Space Available.
(a) Land—Location, size and advantages, estimated selling price.
(b) Buildings—Location, size, floor space, how equipped, state of repair, estimated sale or rental price.

3rd. City Taxes.
Comparison of nearby cities of approximately the same size. General information in relation of the valuation to city's tax rate.

4th. Prospective Industries.
Compiling a list of industrial prospects to fit in with our existing civic condition. We should have to start with at least 500 concerns.

5th. Stationery.
Letters sent out to the different concerns above mentioned should have a suitable emblem or design forming the letterhead.

6th. General Living Conditions.
Average rent, average price paid on different classifications of labor, churches, schools, amusements, etc., health conditions, death rate, etc., percentage of native born labor.

7th. Power.
General information as to class of power available, rates, etc.

It is the writer's suggestion that committees be appointed to investigate each of the above mentioned subjects and submit a report to the secretary for the compiling of the data.

Respectfully submitted,
INDUSTRIAL BUREAU

Second Trial of Olympia Macri

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Court House, Litchfield, Conn., Nov. 3.—Far from the prejudicial influences of the home town that halted her with frenzied acclaim as a heroine after 11 jurymen had battled valiantly for two days to bring about her acquittal, Olympia Macri, 21 year old New Haven singer, went on trial here today for the second time, charged with the murder of John Bagnano, so called New Haven "sheik" and alleged father of her child.

Almost jauntily—so certain is she of vindication this time—the little unwept mother entered the small, sombre court room, accompanied by her counsel, Joseph Kolatsky of New Haven, a uniformed deputy and Mrs. Mary Todd, a matron of the Litchfield county jail, whether Olympia was brought yesterday and where she spent a prayerful night in anticipation of her new ordeal.

It was a new Olympia Macri, with a poised born of confidence in her ultimate acquittal who stepped into Judge George E. Hinman's court room today.

The slinking figure, which had covered before the stern face of the law at her first trial is gone. The eyes no longer showed red from tears.

Fear has vanished and from it stepped a bright eyed, smiling, pretty faced girl of 18—not Olympia Macri, murderer, but Olympia Macri, slayer for justice.

"I am certain that I will be acquitted this time," she told newspaper men.

BLOODY HAMMER ONLY CLUE TO MURDER.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Hillsdale, N. J., Nov. 3.—William J. Clark, 25, was murdered mysteriously today by an unknown person who struck him down with a hammer in his garage. Police found a bloody hammer in the garage. No one saw the assailant.

Clark, his wife and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nelson Kent, visited a "Mrs. Stephenson," who lives in Newark. Driving in Clark's automobile, the party returned home shortly after midnight.

After Clark entered a side door of the garage, the two women heard him cry "Oh, Oh!" in agonized tones. They ran toward the car as Clark staggered out the side door with his hands clasped to his head. He died seven hours later.

Clark died without regaining consciousness.

The only clue left behind by the murdered were finger prints on the handle of the hammer and the outline of foot prints on the soggy ground outside the garage.

DOWN SIDES PRESENT VICTORY IN NEWARK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Newark, N. J., Nov. 3.—Faced with last minute claims of a large majority by both Republicans and Democrats, the voting populace of New Jersey went to the polls today to choose between State Senator Arthur Whittley, backed by the Republican party and the Anti-Saloon League, and Commissioner A. Harry Moore, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Harry Hoher, chairman of the Democratic state committee, asserted that Moore would carry New Jersey by at least 150,000. Whittley supporters contended that they will win by 50,000.

Off-Year Election Is Very Quiet

Little of the Usual Election Day Flavor in Today's Battle of the Ballots—Political Railbirds Interacted in Two Issues.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 3.—Some millions of American voters are marching to the polls today in 13 states to elect governors, mayors, legislators, municipal and county officers, and pass upon a scattered assortment of important local amendments.

It is the quietest off-year election the country has witnessed in years.

Save for the governorship contests in New Jersey and Virginia, and the mayoralty fights in some of the larger cities like New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and Buffalo, there is little of the usual election day flavor in today's battle of the ballots.

Nevertheless, the leaders of all parties will view the results with analytical eyes, for today's decisions will reveal, to some extent at least, the trend of popular political opinion.

Indiana, for example, may furnish a revealing trend of electoral thought. Every city of size in the state, 101 to be exact, is electing a mayor today. While the municipal fights usually are independent of party, nevertheless, in many cases these fights are hooked up more or less directly with district and state politics.

The political railbirds of the capital are chiefly interested in two issues that figure in today's balloting and which, to a greater or lesser extent, may figure in the congressional elections of next year.

The Klan Issue.

One of these is the Ku Klux Klan. This issue, with its accompaniment of racial and religious bitterness, has been injected prominently into the mayoralty campaigns of Detroit, Indianapolis and Buffalo. In these cities and many smaller ones, the Klan is out in the open with its endorsements and red fire. The results will be scrutinized with interest by Republican and Democratic leaders alike.

Wet and Dry Fight.

Another issue, magnified by its inclusion in today's balloting, is found in the wet and dry fight in New Jersey. A Harry Moore, Democratic candidate for governor, has openly declared for modification of the Volstead act. His Republican opponent, Arthur Whittley, is endorsed by the Anti-Saloon League.

Peculiar interest attaches to the New Jersey contest because of the renewed agitation for modification, and reports, never confirmed but still persistent, that some of the biggest industrial leaders of the commonwealth will come out for modification in 1925 if the reorganized enforcement unit does not make a better stab at enforcing the law.

Election Calendar.

Only two congressional seats are to be filled in today's election, one in New Jersey and one in Kentucky, both vacancies caused by death.

Briefly summarized, today's election calendar follows in part:

New Jersey—General election of governor, state officers, one congressman, part of state senate, and entire assembly.

Virginia—General election of governor, all state officers and new assembly.

Indiana—Municipal elections in 101 cities.

Michigan—Municipal elections in many cities, including Detroit.

New York—Municipal elections in New York, Buffalo and other cities, election of entire new assembly, and voting upon four constitutional amendments.

Ohio—Special election on several constitutional amendments.

Pennsylvania—State wide election of county officers and one supreme court justice.

470 Absentee Voters in Ulster

Number of Absentee Voters' Ballots Issued by Board of Elections Here Larger Than in Greater New York—Heavy Vote Picked Early.

Election day dawned bright and clear today and by noon it was evident that almost the entire registration of over 12,000 in Kingston will have cast their votes before the polls close at 6 o'clock this evening. During the early morning hours the vote was heavy. In some of the wards it was reported that the vote cast was much larger than last year during the same hours.

At all of the polling places the candidates for the various offices on both tickets were present seeing that the vote was gotten out. Both parties had engaged automobiles which were assigned to the various polls and used in getting out the vote.

There were 470 absentee voters' ballots sent out by the Ulster county board of elections for the election. Nearly all have been mailed back and sent to the respective election districts in the city and towns. In Greene county over 600 absentee voters' ballots had been sent out while in Greater New York the number was only 307.

Reference John J. Burns of the compensation department of the State Industrial Commission will be at the court house this city, Friday, November 6, and hear claimants for compensation who have received no income during their employment.

Flood Kills 24 When Dam Breaks

Two Villages in Wales Virtually Annihilated as Impounded Waters Sweep Down Valley in Streams 30 Feet Deep.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 3.—Twenty-four persons are dead as the result of the flood which wiped out the Welsh village of Dolgarrog when a dam broke, according to the Evening Standard.

The Standard states that seven bodies have been recovered and a search is being made for other bodies.

The village was virtually annihilated in a rushing torrent of water which swept down the valley from a broken dam near Llandudno.

More than 150,000,000 gallons of water swept over the village, forming two streams, forty yards wide and thirty feet deep.

Communication with the devastated area had not been restored today.

It was feared additional casualties would come to light when wreckage is cleared away.

Only the warning given by the cannon like roar as the dam gave way prevented an appalling loss of life.

The full force of the torrent was felt by Dalgarrig and Porthlwydy, above it. Thousands of acres of land were inundated in that region.

Later reports received from Porthlwydy indicated the death list at that expected. The town has a population of 3,000, and while communication is still interfered with, reports state that many of the inhabitants have not been definitely accounted for.

High waters are interfering with the search for victims.

The broken dam was constructed to hold back the waters of Llynneiglan Lake.

France Must Pay War Debts

Before Franc Can Be Considered Safe, Declares Premier Painleve—Premier Announces Plans Before the Chamber Today.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 3.—France must conclude agreements for the settlement of her war debts before the franc can be considered safe, Premier Painleve declared this afternoon in his ministerial declaration to the chamber of deputies.

While the premier was addressing the chamber, Minister of Justice Chaumets was reading the statement to the senate.

The premier announced that he plans to create an autonomous sinking fund, independent of state funds, secured by sacrifices "participated in by all forms of wealth."

"No matter how great internal efforts are made the franc won't be safe until we have concluded agreements regarding our war debts with the great friendly countries," the premier said.

"We intend to resolutely continue the negotiations begun in London and Washington by the preceding government, with a desire to reach equitable agreements. The efforts of our country will make to save itself will be the best guaranty of success of those negotiations."

"Financial problems are vital and most grave for France. We cannot live indefinitely on economic instability which discourages work and an economic spirit which menaces our external credit."

Financial sacrifice must be obligatory upon all citizens, the premier said, and he pledged himself to balance the budget.

"Not one centime of receipts should be secured by inflation, a loan or any system except taxation," M. Painleve continued, a statement which may well lead to the downfall of his cabinet if he carries it out.

"The Moroccan menace is completely eliminated and twenty-two battalions are returning to France," the premier told the chamber.

"We fought in Morocco only for peace and it is now up to the Rifian and Djiballa tribes to say whether they desire peace."

"Recent Syrian outbreaks are due to Xenophobic intrigues and false news from Pan-Islamic sources," the premier declared, but an inquiry into Syrian affairs is now in progress.

Electoral reforms and the reduction of compulsory military service from 18 months to one year was promised by M. Painleve.

"If Europe persists in divisions and hates she is condemned to perdition," the premier said in referring to League parties. "France is not yet free from danger, yet she has taken a lead among the nations in searching for security. The path of peace is open."

Judge Fowler fixed bail under the two felony charges at $2,500 each and for the misdemeanor $1,000. The two Cashdollar men were arrested in a raid on their place recently at Jenkintown when State Troopers made an investigation of conditions at the place.

Variety of Charges.

Recess Until November 9.
The court ordered 50 extra jurors drawn for attendance at court November 10 at 10 o'clock. Court went into recess until November 9. At that time the trial of criminal matters will be taken up. District Attorney Traver has prepared a criminal calendar for that time which contains 58 cases.

BINGHAMTON KLANSMEN BELIEVE THEY WILL WIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 3.—With a registration of 25,855, the largest in history, Binghamton today is in the throes of a Klan and Anti-Klan battle. The forces are fairly evenly matched, but betting indicates that the candidates said to be supported by the Klan, Charles W. Freeman, who was defeated in the Republican primaries but who was nominated by the Democrats at the same time, has the support of right wing Republicans, Democrats and Socialists. But the women's vote plus the Klan vote plus what is called the normal church vote, is expected to beat him. Foreseeing victory, the Klan bombarded the city last night with fake bombs from the hills and fiery crosses blazed on surrounding mountains.

VIOLENCE AT ELECTION IN BOROUGH OF ENGLAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 3.—Socialist victories in the boroughs throughout England were indicated in early returns today.

The election was featured by scenes of violence in the Battersea district where Socialists clashed with municipal reformers marching under the Union Jack. The Socialists seized and tore up copies of conservative newspapers.

Police charged the crowds and arrested eight persons.

Despite the gains which they have made in the municipal councils the Socialists have only gained absolute control of one additional borough that of Shoreditch. This borough was under Socialist control six years ago but during the past three years has been a conservative borough.

"There have been negotiations carried on as to the sum to be paid Mrs. Stillman by her husband for her support but there have been no negotiations toward a divorce," said Mills.

"As her counsel I would know. Neither have any papers in connection with divorce proceedings been filed. Of course, I cannot say what Mrs. Stillman's expectations are."

Adjournment in Mitchell Case

Jury of Generals Overrules Motion to Dismiss Case—Flying General Given Ample Opportunity to Defend Himself.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 3.—The army court martial that is trying Colonel William Mitchell for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline" decided today to give the flying general ample opportunity to defend himself before finding him guilty.

After promptly overruling a motion to dismiss the whole case, which indicated an eventual verdict of guilty, the jury of generals granted him an adjournment until Monday next in order to obtain numerous witnesses through whom Mitchell will endeavor to prove that his charges of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the army and navy air services were fully justified.

Mitchell has taken steps to procure 73 witnesses, including cabinet officers, President Coolidge's secretary, high ranking officers of the army and navy, A. E. F. veterans, flying officers, etc. Whether the court will permit him to introduce all of these is problematical, but it was decided by the generals to let him start anyway.

The jury of generals evidently felt that to deny Mitchell the privilege of calling witnesses in his own behalf might be calculated to give the public an unfavorable impression. Technically speaking, denial of such witnesses would have been in accordance with court martial custom, for as Mitchell has admitted making the statements attributed to him, it rests entirely in the opinion of the court as to whether the mere act of issuance did not constitute "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline."

The decision of the jury of generals was a death blow to the defense. Without discussion or without leaving the courtroom, the generals quickly upheld a ruling by Colonel Blanton Winship, law member of the court, which quivered the motion and rejected the plea for Mitchell's acquittal.

"The opinion of the law member, without objection, is made the decision of the court," said Major General Robert L. Howze, president of the court.

Court then was recessed for 30 minutes to permit counsel to confer upon the defense's request for the calling of 73 witnesses in Mitchell's behalf.

The court ruled nine times, once for each of the eight specifications and finally, in effect, approved the prosecution's cause in toto.

The developments occurred with startling rapidity. Representative Reid, Republican of Illinois, defense counsel, first offered his motion, denounced the prosecution's case, quashed Mitchell's statements and demanded his acquittal.

The motion was immediately opposed by Colonel Sherman Moreland, the trial judge advocate. He declared the attacks on the war and navy departments made by Mitchell in his San Antonio statements last September were sufficient proof of the flying colonel's guilt of violating the 95th article of war.

"If the government has not provided already for the several offenses charged, then the prosecution has failed," said Moreland. "If the attacks upon two high government departments by a high officer in one of them, it does not constitute the offenses charged, then again I say, the prosecution fails."

The attack by the accused, as offered in evidence, were sufficient proof of his guilt in the opinion of the prosecution.

Mitchell sat quietly at the side of his wife and counsel. Then Winship, without hesitating, promptly overruled the motion.

Kills Mother With an Axe

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 3.—Because his mother, Mrs. William Lulewicz, 60, refused him additional money for liquor, William Lulewicz, 22, killed her with an axe in the family home here last night, the Plymouth youth admitted in a confession this afternoon, according to the police.

"I had about ten glasses of moonshine, and I don't remember a thing that happened," police said he told them. He was held without bail. Lulewicz, police say, was intoxicated when taken into custody and could not be questioned until this morning.

Two Arrests Monday.

The police department made two arrests on Monday. John Shrauth was found helplessly drunk on Wall street by Officer Bower, and will be given a chance to explain it later to the judge. Charles E. Denison of Watervliet was arrested by Officer Soper for driving up Broadway on the wrong side of the street. He gave bail for his appearance later in police court.

Ancient Castle Now Used as an Office

There is a castle twenty odd miles down the river from London which houses a complete office staff in much the same manner as might a block of chambers in the city of London or elsewhere. It was built in the seventeenth century, and is of Norman design.

This once fortified stronghold lies off the London road which runs into Gravesend, the castle overlooking the Thames is almost a direct line with Tilbury docks on the opposite side. The approach to the castle is by a slope cut out of the chalk cliffs off the main highway. North-east town lies several hundred yards distant. Once the ornamental gateway at the foot of the slope is reached, the Twentieth century is left behind.

Nearby is an ancient dooryard. This fell into disuse many generations back; but not long ago a plant for the manufacture of paper was installed on the site. Thus arose the problem of accommodating the clerical and other staffs employed in the business during the ordinary working hours.

The demand for castles by the modern classes being somewhat limited, the stronghold at Northfleet was taken over and its interior converted into up-to-date offices. Yet, modern as is the interior aspect, the view from within across the river is still by means of cross-bow windows and stone battlements.

Pretty Frock Designed for Young Co-Eds' Wear

For the slim, straight young woman in high school or college comes a smart frock in deep brown silk, lightly striped in gold—a practical gown in its dark colorings, yet with gayly embroidered collar and cuffs of gold-toned silk, it's pretty enough for festive occasions at school.

Costume Jewelry More Important Than Ever

Costume jewelry is more important than ever and the vogue for expensive ornaments grows apace. Pearls still hold their sway and come in many new designs. Some of the best are in very long strands of graded sizes. There seems to be a strong liking also for the baroque effect. There is, however, an entirely new genre of sports jewelry which is adopted by the woman who likes distinctive things. Some of the peasant jewelry from the Balkans is very stunning and the barbaric ornaments of the northern countries are reminiscent of Viking heroes and Norse legends.

Italian craftsmen have presented an unusually graceful assortment of costume jewelry. Their medium is carved silver combined with semi-precious stones such as lapis, rose-quartz, carnelian, onyx, etc.

One very good set consists of a belt and a brooch. This is appropriate for sports wear and will be a welcome variation to the inevitable narrow band of self-material which appears as a belt on most every sports dress. The brooch is very long, nearly five inches in length, and is of Florentine design with an oval lapis in the center. On most dresses streamer and ties and long ends are attractive, but on sports clothes they lose their smartness if the ends are allowed to fly loose. Nothing can be more attractive and useful, therefore, than to have the loose ends of a tie held together flatly by this unique brooch, which exactly matches the silver belt which has replaced the band of material at the waist.

All European jewelry of this type is more suitable for day wear than is the jewelry of China and India which America attempted to popularize. Not so long ago one saw much Chinese and oriental costume jewelry, but it has not continued in favor. The reason is obvious. It found no appropriate place in the dress of modern western civilization. This only goes to prove that one's clothes and ornaments must be chosen with a care to the setting in which they are to be worn. There is just as great harmony demanded in dress as in music, or any of the arts, and no style can survive which is not founded on some sound principle.

Transparent Materials for New Costume Slips

People who make costume slips as a business are doing a more elaborate job than ever. The new "fourreaux," as the French dressmakers call them, are very different from the simple straight slips devoid of all ornament and worn under a light or slashed dress. Now they might almost be worn as dresses themselves.

They are often composed of two shades of chiffon or silk voile, which in these transparent materials gives a lovely touch of color when worn beneath a beige or gray georgette crepe dress. The slips also are frequently decorated with lace or embroidery, and they are often with fur and volants or plaited when worn under a slashed dress. In order to give freedom of movement the back and front are often overlapped.

Velvet Wraps New Vogue

Fashions roll around in circles. If this be doubted one has only to look at one of the new barrel silhouettes shown at the evening wraps. Many of these are copies of velvet in combination with rich brocades. Usually the upper part is of the brocade with a closely gathered band of velvet bordered with white fur around the middle to give the fullness which the new silhouette demands.

Perfect Tribute

In the old days newspaper reporters covering metropolitan local assemblages all wore firemen's badges with a special inscription, "Admit within fire lines only." The understanding was that they entered burning buildings at their own risk.

A veteran police and fire reporter, much beloved by all the fraternity, died suddenly in one of the big cities. A cub reporter, dedicated to pick out an appropriate floral tribute, decided to make it a masterpiece. At the funeral the most conspicuous thing was his enormous floral piece of white roses which covered the casket. It was made in the shape of a fireman's badge and attracted somewhat startled attention. For spelled across it in gold red roses was the warning: "Admit within fire lines only." One of Oldest Customs

The custom of drinking healths is of great antiquity. At an entertainment given by Hengist, in the fifth century, to the British king, Vortigern, the daughter of the host, Rowena, knelt and presented the wine cup to the king, saying as she did so: "For thy king, your health," and this is generally quoted as the origin of the custom.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 3, 1925.

A USEFUL PRINCE.

On his return from his six months' tour in Africa and South America the Prince of Wales was welcomed with what appeared to be an unmistakable display of popular affection. From the point of view of the heads of state his long journey was not a mere pleasure jaunt; he was engaged, as in his previous trip to India, in the useful work of inspiring loyalty throughout the far dominions. But while he was away England was not very happy and many forebodings of trouble to come found expression. The Locarno peace pact has brightened the outlook for Europe in general, but England's internal troubles have not been made any easier of solution thereby. With incitement from without added to discontent within, British labor is not in a very tractable mood. The Prince has been and can be useful traveling to the far corners of the empire as a symbol of national unity, but he cannot continue this indefinitely and there is really more need of usefulness at home.

Doubtless it is with such thought in mind that the London Spectator frankly says: "The nation desires to see the Prince of Wales, by a process of stabilization, qualifying himself for the great office which it is hoped he will hold with the consent and good-will of all classes." But can Albert Edward firmly grip the loyalty of the working and trading classes if the ministers of state and legislators are unable to do so? Being only a figure-head under the British system, what can he do other than smile and shake hands and appear to be democratic? In the circumstances one feels sorry for the young man. It is true that he can study conditions and make informal suggestions, but to do this effectively he would need to develop into a great statesman—which none of his family has been and is more than can be expected. But no doubt the Prince will gravely consider the Spectator's words and try to do all he can.

"THE USELESS PENNY."

Such is the characterization of our one cent piece by the New York World, which says: "What will it buy? A few years ago it had a mighty purchasing power. It would buy a pea-shooter, a strap of licorice, six gum-drops, a handful of BB shot. A little later it was still worth something. It would buy chewing-gum and a brace of cigarettes in the days when the corner smoke-house used to keep a loose package for sporty young men of thirteen who didn't bother with a whole package. But now? Its purchasing power is as mythical as that of the French centime. One racks the brain in vain to think of something it will buy."

The World forgets that one cent will provide the thirsty traveler on some trains with a paper cup which is his only means of getting a drink of water, that two one-cent pieces will buy a copy of the Times on the streets of New York, that three will buy a copy of the World itself, and that two or three of them will buy a daily newspaper in many cities. Moreover, inquiry of a small suburban storekeeper reveals the fact that there are "lots of little candies" such as "tootsie rolls," "lollypops," etc., which children can still buy for one cent. For that amount they can also get one-fifth of a 5-cent package of chewing-gum and one of even "a few little toys" still selling for a penny. The late Vice-President Marshall lamented that there is no longer a good 5-cent cigar, and no doubt the average child laments that its penny is not as valuable as it used to be, but he is well aware that it still has purchasing power. The World has reached a hazy conclusion. The American penny, instead of being "useless," is in use every day.

It is rare for a man who has made a success in one line to go into another and chance the habits acquired during many years. Two remarkable cases of change of vocation have just received public mention. Dr. J. T. Nason, long successful as a surgeon, is now a bank payee in Pennsylvania, and the Rt. Rev. John Gardiner Murray, Bishop of Maryland, who has just been made president of the Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was in his youth a mining engineer and later on a successful banker.

Chicago has succeeded in forging a little ahead of New York in at least one particular—its crime bill, which amounts, it is stated, to less than $400,000 annually.

That Body of Yours

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION.

I speak frequently about the advantages of a little exercise to stimulate the lungs, to squeeze the liver. Also of the benefit of bending from side to side to squeeze both the liver and gall bladder, thus hurrying the bile along on its way.

The great benefit of Epsom Salts in cleansing the intestine has been recognized. For many years, and latterly it has been used to clear the bile from the liver, the bile ducts, and the gall bladder. This is where exercise is not advisable.

In connection with this treatment some French physicians have advised that after taking the salts in the morning on arising, the patient should lie on the right side for ten minutes, and wait half an hour before breakfast. This should be done daily for two weeks or a few months even. Now the part of the treatment that is of interest to many sufferers from indigestion, is the lying on the right side for ten minutes. This enables the stomach, usually slow or in a "dropped" position, to syphon its contents into the small intestine in a short time.

Then the waiting for a half hour before a meal means that the stomach will not only be completely emptied, but will also be rested before the meal is eaten.

The trouble with a number of these cases of indigestion, is that there is often some fermenting food in the stomach when they eat another meal, and so delay, fermentation, gas formation is only a natural result.

Now it is not good sense usually, to try and make a machine of yourself, to count your calories to the last decimal, nor your exact hours of rest and exercise, so that a little departure therefrom is going to be a source of worry. But where the emotions are disturbed, when you are very tired physically or mentally, where you actually know what food takes a long time to leave the stomach, then it is only common sense of course to rest your brain and body before eating.

And at these times also it would pay you to act on the advice given above, and given once before, of lying on the right side for ten minutes, about four hours after your previous meal, or at least one hour before your next meal.

The stomach is then empty and rested, and should be ready for its regular work.

Adopt Plan to Save Forests at Xmas

Commerce Chambers Will Distribute Living Trees From Tree Nurseries to the Aged, the Sick and Children.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 3.—The National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild today announced a nation-wide plan for the saving of American evergreen forests which will be put in operation by its branches as well as by Chambers of Commerce, Rotary Clubs, Girl Scouts and other welfare bodies throughout the country at Christmas time, the plan providing for the purchase from tree nurseries of living Christmas trees for distribution to aged and poor people, children and the sick.

Upwards of twenty chambers of commerce and other bodies have undertaken to put the plan in operation in their cities, and two state governors, Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska and Governor Tom J. Terrell of Arkansas, publicly endorse the plan as do the American Forestry Association and the American Tree Association, both with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

To Replant Christmas Trees in Spring
Branches of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild throughout the country, which are undertaking the distribution of the living Christmas trees, plan to replant the Christmas trees in parks and open spaces next spring. Miss Bullis announced that application would be made to the park commissioner for permission to replant one of the living Christmas trees in Central Park of New York next spring.

Spring planting of the Christmas trees was suggested by Professor John W. Stephens of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, which will undertake to supply the living trees from its nurseries free of charge as long as the supply lasts. Miss Bullis reports that the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild has compiled a list of available tree nurseries in various parts of the country from which the living trees may be purchased and this list will be forwarded to anyone making application to receive it.

THE HIMALAYAN SCOT.

A few individuals of this strange species have been seen from time to time around the higher hill stations of Northern India. The scots' favorite food is the tiger, but they have difficulty in capturing it, and often go hungry. Their nests are magnificent affairs up high on the rocks, with walls trimmed in Early Renaissance frescoes and lined with elephant feathers.

This scot, out on its evening flight in search of an elephant for more feathers, has powerful wings made of walnut shells. His head is a double peanut, while the stumpy tail is a clove. The legs are tooth picks, and the feet are grains of rice. Everything is fastened together with chewing gum.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

WHY HOWE STAYED IN BOSTON.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The two major military operations in the War of the Revolution 150 years ago, as this series of stories has already shown, were the double expeditions against Canada by American forces under Richard Montgomery and Benedict Arnold, and the siege of Boston by the army under George Washington. Thrilling news, sometimes good and sometimes bad, was coming in from the Canadian front, as in yesterday's story. But what of the siege of Boston? Was this a permanent deadlock, and if so, what was to break it?

In a way, it was a deadlock in November 1775, nor was there at that time a war correspondent rash enough to prophesy how it was to be broken. Not until long after the siege was ended did Washington learn why General Howe, the British commander in Boston, did not break it at this time by breaking out of Boston and sweeping away the patriot camp at Cambridge. Nor did Howe know that Washington was powerless to close in on Boston and compel his capitulation, because the Americans had hardly enough powder and shot to sustain a single hour's bombardment.

About this time, however, London was hearing from Howe what Howe thought about it. Howe and his predecessor, Gage, has learned something from Bunker Hill. Howe had written home on October 9 "That the opening of the campaign from this quarter would be attended with great hazard, as well from the strength of the country, as from the entrenched position of the rebels." Among the legacies left by Gage to Howe—which Howe did not need, for he had seen Bunker Hill for himself—was the following choice bit of comment:

"The trials we have had show the rebels are not the despicable rabble too many have supposed them to be; and I find it owing to a military spirit, encouraged among them for a few years past, joined with an uncommon degree of zeal and enthusiasm, that they are otherwise."

Thus it was that Howe found it congenial to his disposition to follow Gage's precedent as propounded in the following report written early in October:
"I am of opinion that no offensive operations can be carried on to advantage from Boston. On the supposition of a certainty of driving the rebels from their entrenchments, no advantage would be gained but reputation; victory could not be improved, through the want of every necessity to march into the country. The loss of men would probably be great and the rebels be as numerous in a few days as before their defeat; besides, the country is remarkably strong and adapted to their way of fighting."

Early Voting in New York Light

Betting Odds Were as High as 15 to 1 on Walker to Beat Waterman—Expect Fairly Large Vote to be Polled.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 3.—The voters of New York city went to the polls today to elect a new mayor.

Early voting was light. The campaign had established a record for apathy on the part of the voting public. A light rain was falling when the polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning. They will close at 6 p. m. The result of the election is to be known within an hour after the polls close.

Betting greatly favored James J. Walker, the Democratic candidate, to win over Frank D. Waterman, his Republican opponent. The betting odds last night closed at 15 to 1 that Walker would win—the highest ever offered on a New York mayoralty candidate.

Both Walker and Waterman campaigned until a late hour. Each delivered a final appeal to the voters on the radio.

The general impression prevailed this morning that the Democrats will win by a large plurality. Both sides, however, claimed victory. Tammany predicting Walker would center in by a majority of more than 300,000, while Republican leaders insisted Waterman would win by 100,000.

Despite the light voting this morning, it was expected a fairly large vote would be polled. A vote of about 1,110,000 is anticipated. The total registration was 1,240,000 in round numbers.

Aside from other candidates besides mayor being voted upon in the municipal contest, there are four constitutional amendments to be decided upon. They are:

1. To authorize the state to issue $100,000,000 in bonds annually for ten consecutive years for various public improvements.
2. To authorize the state to issue $300,000,000 in bonds for removal of grade crossings.
3. Providing for the reorganization of the state departments and reducing the number of elective state offices to four.
4. Revision of the constitutional provisions affecting the judiciary.

COMPLETE ELECTRIC LINE AT WITTENBERG

The crowd of men who came from Poughkeepsie on Monday morning, October 13, to run the electric light lines through Wittenberg, under the supervision of Joseph Nichols, have finished the work after two weeks of hard labor.

Although some days were cold and stormy the boys still kept at their work and when they came home at night tired but happy, all were glad they had accomplished another day's work on the task which they started out to do.

The electrical line was completed on Saturday afternoon, October 31, and a current of 4,000 volts turned on.

Mr. Nichols and his men left on Saturday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock for their homes in Poughkeepsie. They expect to go to New Paltz on Monday morning where they have much more electrical work awaiting them.

LEGION TO BROADCAST ARMISTICE PROGRAM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—Radio will, on the basis of advance information received at national headquarters of The American Legion here, play a large part in this year's observance of Armistice day on November 11, particularly by the Legion.

In previous years special radio programs in honor of the day when peace came to a world weary with four years and more of war have been put on by Legion posts and departments all over the country. This is certain to be the case again this year.

Many of these programs have been arranged for the special benefit of the disabled men who seven years after the signing of the armistice are still in hospitals. Disabled veterans are particularly invited, along with all World War veterans, to listen in on a special program to be broadcast on Armistice night, November 11, from Station WSMR at New Orleans on a wave length of 319 meters. Vocal and instrumental numbers, humorous readings and other features of special appeal to veterans will be put on the air from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. (Central Standard Time.)

Warren-Townsend Post of the Legion at Hot Springs, Arkansas, will put a program on the air from 9 to 10 p. m. (Central Standard Time) on the night of November 11 from Station KTHS on a wave length of 274.8 meters.

Caland (California) Post will have a special radio program from 9 to 10 p. m. on November 11. This will be sent out by Station KLLX (565.2 meters.)

VAN BRAMER MAKES BIG HIT IN WATERTOWN

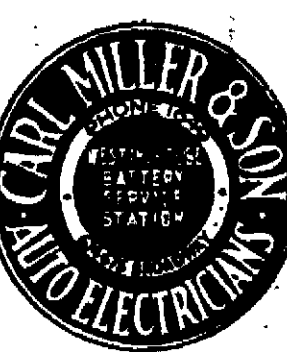

Local dance followers will be interested in knowing that Vincent Van Bramer, former Kingstonian and well-known along the Hudson, has made a big hit with his sensational dancing in Watertown where he now resides.

At a dance last Friday evening, held for the benefit of the senior class of Watertown High School, Mr. Van Bramer gave an unusual performance of the new version of the last dance craze, the Charleston. Mr. Van Bramer received a tremendous ovation and was immediately engaged to perform at the annual carnival and festa for the same class the latter part of December.

It could not be learned who is to be Mr. Van Bramer's partner on this occasion.

Conferences for Child Health

Reports Show Nearly 600,000 Children Were Examined—Other Conferences Show Good Results—Substantial Drop in Infant Death Rate.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Examination of nearly 600,000 infants and preschool children at 26,353 child-health conferences during the fiscal years 1924 and 1925 was reported to the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor by states cooperating under the Federal Maternity and Infancy Act, according to a statement made public here today.

Forty-three states and Hawaii are cooperating under this act, which provides Federal aid for the promotion of the welfare of mothers and babies, Vermont, Louisiana and Rhode Island having accepted during the fiscal year 1925. States not cooperating are Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, and Massachusetts. The Children's Bureau made public today an official report covering the state accomplishments during 1924, together with preliminary figures for 1925.

Additional Conferences.
These figures show that, in addition to the examination of babies and young children at the child-health conferences, maternity and infancy activities during 1924 and 1925 included the holding of 9,669 prenatal conferences attended by approximately 75,000 women, classes for mothers with a total attendance of approximately 40,000, the holding of mothers' classes with an attendance of more than 162,000 mothers, and the organization of over 5,000 "little mothers' classes." The number of child-health centers established was 1,306; the number of prenatal centers, 245.

Defects That Require Correction.

Although centers are for "well babies," the report states, defects are frequently found which require correction before the child is free to gain a maximum of physical fitness. Defects most frequently encountered are refractive errors in the eyes, nasopharyngeal growths and abnormalities, orthopedic defects, glandular enlargements or insufficiencies, dental caries, malnutrition (always the large percentage in every group). Children are always referred to family physicians for the correction of these defects, if there is a physician. A few states have arranged for clinics at which defects may be corrected by a staff physician or a specialist. Some states furnished estimates of defects corrected during 1924, ranging usually from 20 to 40 per cent.

Important Activities.

Other important activities under the act include home visits by nurses in sparsely settled country where health conferences are not possible, nutrition work for expectant mothers and for children, efforts to make good confinement and postnatal care possible for mothers, inspection of maternity and infant homes, improvement of birth registration, the distribution of silver nitrate solution to prevent ophthalmia neonatorum (blindness of the newborn), anti-diphtheria campaigns, campaigns to have all pre-school children examined before school entrance, general educational work.

Cost and Appropriations.

The Children's Bureau also reports as to the cost of the act and the total appropriations, national and state, spent in accordance with its provisions. The act authorizes $1,240,000 annually for 5 years (the five-year period ends June 30, 1927), $50,000 of which may be spent by the Children's Bureau for administrative and investigating purposes. From 1924 appropriations the states accepted $918,250, from 1925 funds (up to October 1, 1925), $949,827. During the fiscal year 1924, the Children's Bureau spent for administrative and investigating purposes, $35,578; during 1925, $42,972. Estimates on a per capita basis show that federal appropriations for maternity and infancy work cost annually less than one per cent per inhabitant of the United States.

Bureau Chief's Report.

Commenting on the report of work done under the act, Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau, said:

"The provisional figures for 1924 of the vital statistics division of the Bureau of the Census indicate a substantial drop in the infant death rate for both urban and rural communities in the United States birth registration area; but even with this improvement the infant death rate in the United States is higher than in Australia, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the Irish Free State, and no state in the United States birth registration area has so low a rate as New Zealand. It is quite evident, therefore, that the United States cannot afford to slacken its interest or reduce in any way the intelligent expenditure of funds to lower death rate among babies.

"A report on maternal mortality, which will be published soon by the Bureau, shows that a very high percentage of the losses are due to preventable causes. It is, therefore, especially important that the program for prevention of the unnecessary deaths in childbirth should be pushed. Here, too, the United States lags behind many countries. Demonstrations of successful methods of conducting prenatal clinics have been made in many places under the maternity and infancy act. A beginning has been made in setting a state program of work understood and actually under way in some communities. On the basis of this experience an expansion of the work can economically be undertaken.

"Last year the benefits of the maternity and infancy work were extended to Hawaii. The high death rates in Porto Rico and Alaska also make assistance from the United States of special importance.

Smith Receives Many Invitations

To Speak in Nearly Every State East of The Mississippi—Condition of State Will Not Permit Another Income Tax Cut, It Is Hinted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 3.—Governor Al Smith has been invited to speak in nearly every state east of the Mississippi river since last summer, it was revealed today at the Executive Chamber.

The invitations to address all sorts of meetings have been coming in so fast during the last few months that the governor found it impossible to answer any of them, except to decline.

It always has been the governor's custom, according to George B. Graves, his private secretary, to write a personal letter when he received an invitation to speak, giving his reasons why he could not be present. Of late, however, the invitations have been coming in at such a rate the governor has been unable to keep up this practice.

From now until the Legislature gets under way early in January, Governor Smith is planning to do just as little public speaking as possible, Mr. Graves said.

The governor is expected back at the Executive Chamber on Wednesday. He will probably remain for two or three days, cleaning up the state business that has piled up during his visit of the last week in New York. Then he will take a vacation, probably the remainder of the present month. It is understood the governor will go to the seashore but how far south he will go is not known.

When the governor returns to the Capitol from his vacation he will begin to think about the preparation of his annual message to the 1926 Legislature.

It has been hinted about the Capitol already that the financial condition of the state will not permit the governor to recommend another 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax. During the last two years such a recommendation by the Executive saved income taxpayers upwards of $16,000,000.

"THE FRUITS OF PEACE"

AT EPWORTH HALL

On Wednesday evening, November 4, the Dramatic Club of the Clinton Avenue Epworth League will present under the auspices of the Jr. O. U. A. M. band the pageant "The Fruits of Peace," in the Clinton Avenue Epworth Hall.

This will be the last time they will present this pageant. It has been presented several times, each time to an audience that filled the hall. The last time there were nearly seven hundred present.

This pageant is composed of forty-five young people, thirty-five in the playing cast and ten in the choir. The stage setting is very attractive and the lighting is unusually effective. Several big changes were made from the original manuscript, so no other cast could possibly present this pageant in the same manner that this cast has had several invitations to present this out of town, two of them coming from large organizations in New York city. Because of the success and advertising this cast has had with this pageant, the Epworth League is now putting it out in pamphlet form for the first time. The following is the cast:

Synopsis.

Part I—The Plea for Peace. The procession of the youth of the nations of the world. An unsuccessful international peace conference.

Part II—The Fruits of Peace. 1. Episode of Plenty. 2. Episode of Health. 3. Episode of Christian Education. 4. Episode of Spiritual Progress. This part features "The Soldiers of Peace." Finale—The full fruition. Processional. Peace returns. Thanks.

Ann Apple's Birthplace

The apple was a native of Central Asia. It was introduced into England in 1629 by the government of Massachusetts Bay colony.

London Great Britain is expending nearly three times that amount in "crisis" aid to local communities for maternity and child health, enabling the "health visitors" to reach an estimated 85 per cent of the children born in a year in England and Wales and 32 per cent of the expectant mothers.

Substitute for Coal Is Wood

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 3.—One of the best substitutes for coal is wood. If wood could be obtained at a price attractive to the buyer or even as cheaply as coal the threat and hardship of a coal strike in many localities would be greatly lessened, says the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

Nothing brings out the necessity or forestry in this country like a coal strike because the practice of scientific forestry means a near and plentiful supply of wood at reasonable prices. We have an abundance of idle forest land on which wood could be grown. More wood is used for fuel in the United States than for any other purposes. There are many owners of forests able to reap considerable profit from their woodlots during coal strikes. It is a good time to clear up woodlots. The standard cord 8 feet long, 4 feet wide and 4 feet high of the best grade firewood contains about as many heat units as a ton of coal but coal usually costs more than twice as much. Stove lengths of hardwood can be purchased between $6 and $8 per cord in most localities. Wood used as a supplementary fuel in furnaces will go a long way toward offsetting the necessity for burning coal during moderately cold weather. Thus a small supply of coal may be saved until it is needed for the coldest weather.

Green wood cut in the fall if placed in a dry cellar would be in condition to burn about the middle of the winter when the coal shortage may be most keenly felt. But there is much dry, dead standing timber ready to burn. Also large quantities of fallen timber may be found in the average farm woodlot that could be used without further seasoning. In the east there is considerable standing chestnut attacked or killed by the chestnut blight that should be cut. The longer it stands the less valuable it is. Hickory, oak and maple make the best firewood; birch, beech and chestnut probably come next among our common northern hardwoods.

"This hotel fully equipped with automobile sprinklers. Statistics show loss of life has never occurred in a sprinkled building. In case of fire you may get wet, but not burned."

"Now I lay me down to sleep,

PYTHONS

"I'm sure," hissed the Regal Python from his cage in the zoo, "that all the other snakes envy me, poor dears, poor, wriggling dears," he ended.

"I don't envy you in the least," said the Anaconda snake. "I'm a very beautiful snake. I have a gorgeous suit of green which I can always wear."

"You always have to wear it," hissed the Regal Python rudely. "You haven't any other."

"I beg your pardon, my dear sir, but I do not wear it all the time. I change my suit with the fashions—that is, I change it with the wish to change it. When I feel I am outgrowing one suit I get another."

"It makes me laugh," said the Regal Python, "to hear you say you change your suit, or your skin, with the fashions. It is true you do change, but you always get a skin of the same kind as your old one. You always wear a spotted green suit."

"Yes," said the Anaconda snake, "but that is fashionable."

"It may be fashionable for an Anaconda snake," said the Regal Python, "but it is not fashionable for me."

"I don't think of you when I get a new suit," said the Anaconda proudly.

"I only think of myself. It would be foolish to get the skin of a Regal Python when I am not one."

"You couldn't do it," said the Regal Python. "I am the royal snake—the king of the snakes. I am great and powerful and splendid. Instead of sitting on a throne all day long I lie here in the zoo wriggling about. It is much better for a king to wriggle than to sit."

"I'm a Very Beautiful Snake."

"It depends on what sort of a king you are," said the Anaconda.

"When I am in my own land in Africa, or in Asia, for I belong to two countries, I do not care about poisoning those who come my way. No, I don't care for that, but I do love to crush them! Ah, how powerful I am. I weigh about one hundred and eighty-four pounds, you know, and I can do quite a little bit of crushing."

"I know you can," said the Anaconda. "For I've heard the keeper talking about you, but I've always heard the keeper say that I am one of the most beautiful snakes of South America, and that I am very wonderful, for I love the water as I do the land."

"Pooh," hissed the Regal Python, "that isn't being royal as I am."

"Well," said the Regal Python, "I think I will do a little hissing-talking. I am hungry, decidedly hungry. If any one should ask me what I wanted for my luncheon or my dinner or my supper or my breakfast or my afternoon tea, or whatever they call my meal, I would say to them—"

"What would you say?" interrupted the Regal Python.

"I would say to them," continued the Regal Python, "kindly serve me with a few rats, a cat or two if possible, some small and delicate animals and any other little things they have in mind."

"Well," said the Anaconda, "you may get a good meal, but you most certainly won't get any of those animals you mentioned unless perhaps the rats."

"Rats, rats," hissed the Regal Python, "how good the very name sounds to me. Ah, my mouth waters. My throat feels in great need of a number of rats. Ah, how fine they would taste!"

The Regal Python, big as he was, wriggled in a most delighted manner at the thought.

"You know," he continued after a short silence, "I haven't had anything to eat for six months. I had a fine meal then—four rats. I think I had, and one or two other tempting little trifles."

"You eat very seldom," said the Anaconda, "but you make up for it when you do have a meal."

"Eat seldom but plentifully, is my motto," said the Regal Python. "You see I am a big fellow. I am all coiled up now, but should I uncoil I would be a magnificent size."

"That all depends upon your idea of magnificence," said the Anaconda.

"Yes," said the Regal Python, "it all depends on that."

MEALS FOR THE DAY

Cottage cheese which is such a wholesome dish if well prepared, may be made at home when there is an excess of milk. An easy way to make it is to pour boiling water (equal parts of water and milk) into the well-soured milk. Let stand until the curds are formed then pour into a colander or cheese cloth bag to drain. Remove the curd, add salt and white pepper or cayenne and plenty of thick cream. Place on fire. If cream is not at hand use melted butter, mixing well.

When serving cream soups add a spoonful of nicely-flavored grated cheese to each bowl or cup; it adds to the flavor and also the food value.

Chicken Jelly.—Cut up a large chicken into small pieces. Take each piece and pound on a board until the flesh and bone are well-mashed. Put the chicken into a kettle and add a teaspoonful of salt and a quart of cold water. Simmer closely covered twenty minutes, then simmer for four hours on the back of the range or eight hours in a fireless cooker. Strain and mold; serve with lettuce and any desired dressing.

Horseradish Sandwich.—Cream three tablespoons of butter, add two tablespoons of freshly-grated horseradish, one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice and a dash of salt. Spread this on rounds of bread and decorate with slices of stuffed olives.

Graham Muffins.—Take one cupful each of Graham flour and sour milk, one-half teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonsful of sugar, one egg and three tablespoonsful of melted shortening. Bake in gem pans in a moderate oven.

Sardine Scramble.—Add the juice of half a lemon to one cupful of finely cut sardines. Use the oil instead of butter in the omelet pan when hot. Add the sardines to six well-beaten eggs and cook as an omelet. Serve with lemon and parsley.

STUYVESANT PEABODY

SENATOR GEORGE H. MOSES

SHAH OF PERSIA

ETHEL THOMPSON

Stuyvesant Peabody, of Chicago, at thirty-seven, is hailed as captain of industry. He is known as one of the biggest coal operators in the world. Hard work and stenography, he said, placed him in the front rank. Senator George H. Moses, president pro-tem. of the U. S. Senate, was the principal speaker at the laying of the cornerstone of the American Operatic and Allied Arts Foundation at Stony Point, N. Y. Ahmad Kajar, Shah of Persia, is not bothered by the loss of his throne. He continues to live a life of gaiety in France, where he has ample funds. Ethel Thompson, New York nurse, is home after serving with the French Army and the A. E. F. in the World War, and later with the Serbian and Near East Relief.

De Paolo, the Italian-American racing champion, in the presence of 75,000 fans, won the 250-mile race at Salem, N. H., with a pair of his baby's shoes tied securely to the front axle of the machine as his mascot.

GLAD TO BE RELIEVED
SAYS MAYOR HYLAN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 3.—Mayor and Mrs. John F. Hylan cast their votes early today in their home election district in Brooklyn.

Mayor Hylan said to election officials before he left:

"All I have to say is that the burden will be eliminated after the first of the year. I have had eight very strenuous years and I am glad to be relieved."

A Storm Warning Issued.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 3.—The weather bureau today issued a storm warning, advising of disturbances off the Atlantic coast from Atlantic City, N. J., to Boston, Mass., moving northward and causing strong north winds, probably reaching gale force this afternoon and diminishing to night.

Methodists Hold
Dist. Conference

The fifty-eighth session of the Kingston District Conference will be held at Port Ewen Thursday forenoon, afternoon and evening. Routine business, examination of local preachers and discussion of timely subjects will fill the day for the more than sixty ministers with their laymen, who will make up the membership of the conference.

Two distinguished speakers from a distance will be there to help make the meetings memorable. The Rev. George S. Connell of Binghamton, a district superintendent of the Wyoming Conference, will speak in the afternoon. The address of the evening will be delivered by the Rev. F. Watson Hannan of Madison, N. J. These are both excellent speakers and will be sure to draw big crowds.

The evening service will begin at 7:30 with a prelude of music and song, led by the orchestra of the Clinton Avenue Church, this city. These meetings are under the leadership of the district superintendent, the Rev. George Benton Smith, and are open to the public. The Rev. Charles G. Gorse is pastor of the entertaining church.

Radio Will Give
Election Returns

With the invention of the radio, times have changed in obtaining the returns on election night, and now those fortunate enough to own one may sit at home in comfort and hear the returns as they are placed on the air from the broadcasting stations.

This year the Western Union will not supply election returns to places accustomed to receive them as only returns from New York city would be furnished and those can easily be had over the radio.

The local returns as usual will be received by the Republican county and city committees at the court house.

In the "good old days" the man of the house who was interested in knowing who was elected was forced to stand around outdoors somewhere, keeping warm as best he could, while he watched the returns being flashed on a screen hung on the outside of a building. The "good old days," however, have been replaced by the "radio days" and now not only the man of the family but the entire family gather around the loud speaker and get the returns as promptly as in the "good old days," and with considerably more comfort.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago Ill., Nov. 3.—Weighted down with arms but minus any prisoner, a veritable police army returned here this morning after an all night vigil around a farm house near Winfield, Indiana, where they thought they had Martin Durkin, shadowy fugitive, surrounded.

A tip that a man seen in the house was the alleged slayer of Special Federal Agents Edward C. Shanahan and Police Sergeant Harry Gray, proved false.

Automobile Trade Notes.

The new model Stewart speed truck is equipped with a six-cylinder motor and M. T. Southard, of Southard & Belcher, speaks very highly of the smoothness of its operation. The Oakland is making a new style landau sedan, larger, wider seats and other improvements. The price is unchanged and the French & Davis Motor Car Co. will give details.

The price of the Packard Six Five Passenger Sedan, including spare tire, delivered in KINGSTON, is $4,254.00.

1925—The Price Reduction Year

NINETEEN Twenty Five will go down in motor car history as the price reduction year.

Packard set the pace on the very first day of the new year and has since had some forty followers.

However, no one has equaled the mark set by the leader in reducing prices nearly twenty five per cent and at the same time retaining original models with important improvements.

For example, the Packard Six Five Passenger Sedan was reduced $790—actually $954.68 considering added equipment and saving in war tax.

Painleve Plans To Boost Taxes

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 3.—The Painleve cabinet will go before the chamber with its new financial policy and stand or fall upon that policy. Minister of War Daladier informed the International News Service today.

The government is determined to go before the chamber to determine definitely whether parliament wants this government to "stand or fall," the minister of war said, following an informal cabinet meeting.

It had been reported that the cabinet had met to discuss whether it might not be wise to resign without Premier Painleve submitting his ministerial declaration to the chamber of deputies, but such a course appears to have been rejected.

Painleve's financial program, which did not include a capital levy was outlined to the Socialists last night and will be submitted to the chamber Monday, it became known today, although this early submission is contrary to previous information.

Painleve estimated the deficit in the 1925 budget at two million francs which he plans to make up by a 20 per cent increase in income taxes. Beginning next year, Painleve's proposals call for an increase of all classes of taxes to furnish sixty-five billion francs within 15 years for a sinking fund for the liquidation of internal debts.

Thousands View Anderson's Bier

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 3.—Two morgues at opposite ends of the city became the mecca of thousands here today.

In one lay the body of Detective Charles Hammond who even as his own life blood ebbed out upon the pavement snatched a revolver away from a notorious bad man and, true to the code of the force, "got" him with a shot through the heart.

In the other morgue lay the body of the bad man—George "Dutch" Anderson, gunman, bandit, and, the police say, many times a cold blooded slayer.

Those who filed past Hammond's bier came to pay tribute to a brave man. Flags throughout the city were at half mast for him and the home of his bereaved family was another mecca for those who had sympathy or consolation to offer.

Reservists were called upon to stem the throng that sought to view the body of Anderson, drawn there by curiosity to see in death the man that none of them would have cared to face in life. Meanwhile no word had come from friend or relative and it seemed likely that Anderson's body would go to Potter's Field, unclaimed.

To Form Volley Ball League

A meeting of representatives of all concerns interested in forming a Mercantile Volley League will be held in the Y. M. C. A. parlor at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday evening.

At least five concerns have already signed up for this league and it is possible that one or two more will enter teams.

This league, which is open to all concerns in the city, will be made up of five or six men teams and will play games in sets of three on Friday evenings from 7 to 8:30 o'clock.

The league schedule will begin on Friday evening of this week and will continue through until January 1, at which time the Church Volley Ball League will open.

Mercantile houses wishing to enter teams should call Physical Director Euley at 1100 as soon as possible.

War Department Can't Stand Out

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 3.—The war department cannot make further cuts in its budget without seriously crippling the military service of the country, President Coolidge was informed today in a letter from Secretary of War Davis.

Davis's letter was in reply to a communication from the president asking the war department to attempt greater reductions in its expenditures.

Appropriations are barely sufficient to maintain the present military establishment and do not permit any increase in strength or material, Davis said, in effect.

CARD PARTY AND DANCE

WEDNESDAY AT ST. JOSEPH'S

The ladies of St. Joseph's Church have all plans completed for a card party to be given in the school hall on Wednesday evening. This party will be for all in the parish and also for the general public, and a good time is promised whether or no the guests play cards. The young people will have a chance to dance to snappy music by talent from the church school. Beginning at 8 o'clock there will be bridge, pinocle, euchre and five hundred played and while there will be prizes for the game winners there will also be prizes for those who do not play cards. But the assigning of those prizes is to be a surprise. The money which will be received from the party will be given to a nominal admission charge—will be given over to the Sisters of the Convent for Christmas cheer and educational work. All who have promised cakes or other refreshments are asked by the committee in charge to have the same at the school house as soon after 2 o'clock Wednesday as they can get them there, and any other gifts of cake, coffee, milk or sugar, besides those already promised will be very welcome to the committee. Games will begin at 8 o'clock.

AMERICAN DESTROYERS ORDERED TO AID PRIESTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 3.—American destroyers and a Chinese gunboat have been ordered to St. John Island to effect the release of two American priests held there by bandits, the state department was informed today by Consul General Roger C. Tredwell at Hong Kong.

Tredwell himself is on his way to the island to assist in their release.

American ships are under the command of Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, chief of the Asiatic Fleet, while Admiral Li of the Chinese navy has promised to dispatch a warship, said Tredwell.

Old Man Into Auto.

Edwin Van Ethen of 331 Broadway, driver for Max Abel, the Hasbrouck avenue butcher, reported to the police Monday that a little girl named Ida Krum, 9 years old, of 22 Tenackhook street, had run into the rear end of his truck on Gill street, near the Schick grocery store, and dashed a cut lip. He said the girl was playing on the sidewalk with other children and suddenly ran out into the road and into the rear end of the truck.

In the JUNGLE

With Cheerups and the Quixies
By Grace Bliss Stewart

RAFFY FINDS HIS TONGUE

ONE warm sunny day, Cheerups was sitting on the ground in the jungle and looking lazily up into the great trees. Life was looking to see if any fruit were growing handy. "I'll send Softfoot or Brighteyes up to get it if I find some," thought he. Then suddenly he spied a long gold-colored face, all covered with brown spots, and two big solemn eyes looking down at him. Cheerups was most too astonished to breathe. "Gracious, that's a new kind of fruit to me!"

"So You've Lost Your Tongue, Have You, Raffy?"

Then, as his eyes traveled slowly down, over about eight feet of neck and along about ten feet more of body and leg, he had the surprise of his life.

"It's an animal!" cried Cheerups out loud. "But it must be the tallest one in the world."

Then the funny head at the top of the long neck began to nod. Up and down it nodded and nodded.

"Well, I must have said the right thing that time," murmured Cheerups. "But why doesn't he talk, instead of nodding in that silly fashion? He probably thinks I can't hear so far away. What he needs is a telephone."

"That's Raffy Giraffe, Mr. Cheerups," called Jack the Monkey, who was sitting up in the tall palm tree eating dates. "He can hear what you say but he can't talk. He hasn't any voice. Raffy, and Boomer Kangaroo who lives in Australia, are the only animals in the world who can't make a sound. Funny the way men talk about dumb animals, isn't it? I guess nobody in his right senses would call me that," chuckled Jacky with a chuckle.

"So you've lost your tongue, have you, Raffy?"

you, Raffy?" inquired Cheerups kindly. "That's a pity!"

Then, quick as a flash, out of Raffy's mouth shot the longest, slimmest tongue Cheerups had ever seen. It was so twisty and slender that it looked as if it could wrap around anything and tie in a bowknot.

Cheerups just couldn't help laughing. He laughed and laughed. To think of having the longest tongue in the world and not using it for anything! It was too funny. Then he caught sight of the sad look in Raffy's eyes and realized that what seems funny to one person may be no laughing matter to another.

"I'm sorry," sighed Cheerups. "Something is wrong somewhere, and I'd love to help you, but how can I when I don't know what is wanted?"

"I can tell you," chirped Jacky Monk. "I have watched Raffy a lot. He has the longest neck in the world. There isn't a reacher anywhere who can compare with him, but when he is eating leaves in the tops of the trees, there are always a few just a little beyond him and those seem to be the very ones he wants most. He ought to be satisfied with those he can get, but I know he isn't, by the look in his eyes. Isn't that so, Raffy?"

Raffy nodded his head, switched his tail and swayed his long neck back and forth. It was evident that Jacky had told his difficulty exactly.

Cheerups was thinking very hard indeed. Then joyfully he shouted: "Why, of course, it's your tongue that can do it. If you can't talk with it, it ought to be good for something. Your tongue is long and slender, and you can stretch it out for those leaves. It has prehensile or grasping power, too, like the tails of the South American monkeys. You can pick a single leaf or even a blade of grass with it. It can be made short or long, wide or narrow. Now isn't that a gift to be happy about? There's another thing, Raffy: Sometimes the trees you feed on are rough and thorny and hurt your tender nose, so just close your nostrils to protect them. You can do it, I know."

Raffy looked delighted. He closed his nostrils immediately to see if he could. Then he ran out his long tongue and nipped off a leaf high up in the Breadfruit tree. Then he looked at Cheerups with eyes full of gratitude, kicked up his heels, switched his tail joyfully and ran off through the jungle.

"But remember," called Cheerups after him, "that the things which are out of reach are often no better than those just at hand. I hope he heard it," murmured Cheerups thoughtfully. (© by Little, Brown & Co.)

Voting Machines Used in Albany

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3.—For the first time in the city's history voting machines were being used today in the election of municipal officers. Perfect weather was on tap and a heavy vote was reported the first two hours.

Mayor William S. Hackett, Democrat, who was swept into office two years ago by a majority of 15,000, was opposed for re-election by Edward Easton, Republican, and member of one of the city's oldest families. The betting odds favored Hackett to win.

Three members of the assembly and county officials were to be elected. The Republicans now control two of the assembly seats.

CABLE UNDER RIVER USED FOR "AERIAL"

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 3.—Using the telephone cables under the East River for an "aerial," radio engineers achieved a wonderful reception in a steel-shielded room, underneath the main floor of the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, where radio reception had proven weak or impossible with indoor antennae. Reminded that the lead-in of a direct telephone connection with a Manhattan broadcasting studio which transmits the orchestral music from the hotel was in the cellar, engineers fastened the antenna to this wire, and as if by magic KDKA came in with tremendous volume, besides WGY and all local stations. The feat added special interest to the dinner of the research staff of the Freed-Eismann Radio Corporation, the participants remaining until the morning hours to listen in to the most unusual reception. The radio waves, in fact, passed through the watery waves in the East River, to the insulated telephone cable, and through the streets of Brooklyn and Manhattan under which the cable also runs.

"The most amazing thing about it," declared Joseph D. R. Freed, "was the sharp tuning which such a long antenna, miles in length, and with such proximity to the big broadcasting stations of the metropolitan district."

"Engineers and fans may expect interesting results experimenting with underground and underwater antennae."

Bankers' Survey of Banking Laws Blast Destroyed Cementon House

Greater Uniformity and More Efficient Supervision Shown by State Legislation—Limitations Placed on Bank Directors.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 3.—A survey of state banking laws conducted by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers' Association shows marked progress toward greater uniformity and more efficient bank supervision. It is declared by Frank W. Simmonds, in charge of the division, in a statement giving the results of the investigation. He says that the movement for state guaranty of bank deposits appears to have gone into eclipse.

"The division has urged that the office of bank commissioner be freed from politics and all other functions of state government, and tenure be made more secure with sufficient compensation and discretion to attract men of outstanding ability," Mr. Simmonds says. "Gratifying progress has been made during the past year in important bank legislation in many states. Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon led the list by adopting entirely new modern banking codes, while Texas and Montana have new codes in preparation."

Trend Toward Uniformity.
The survey shows that it is generally agreed there should be a high degree of uniformity among the states in laws dealing with certain fundamental principles of bank organization, regulation and supervision, and that there is a strong tendency in this direction. We find a very definite trend toward increasing the minimum capital requirements of banks to $25,000; creation of banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissioner; and legislation empowering bank commissioners to take complete charge of insolvent banks and to liquidate them as distinguished from liquidation through the courts.

The Legislative Trend.
"We find also a trend toward legislation providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations; more equitable taxation of bank stock, legislation providing for merger, conversion or consolidation of banking institutions; the legalizing and regulating of what is known as 'departmental banking,' broadening the field for investment of funds of saving banks and trust companies; and increasing the power of the bank commissioner as to granting or denying charters for new banks, and authorizing his making reasonable rules and regulations governing bank management and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof."

Legislation Affecting Directors.
"Additional general characteristics of state bank legislation are for increasing the compensation of the bank commissioner and lengthening his term of office of four, five and six years, with power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners; legislation providing for the reduction of mandatory bank calls to three and reducing the number of examinations required by law annually to one; making issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor; limiting or prohibiting an officer or director of a bank borrowing from his bank unless his collateral is approved by a majority of the board of directors, and limiting or prohibiting the opening of branch banks."

States Not Guaranteeing Deposits.
"The question of state guaranty of bank deposits appears this year to have passed into an eclipse, so far as the extension of the idea is concerned, notwithstanding the fact that state guaranty laws were recommended by the governors of two states, and bills were introduced in several of the states all of which were defeated. The general tendency, so far as state guaranty of deposits laws are concerned, is distinctly the other way, the indications being that several states now having guaranty laws are trying to free themselves from this legislation. Oklahoma has abandoned the plan of state guaranty of deposits, and this year the South Dakota legislature has repealed the state guaranty law and has referred the repeal to the people at the next general election for ratification."

Through the explosion of a blast in a new quarry of the Acme Cement Company at Cementon about 12 o'clock Sunday, a dwelling house on a street and joining the quarry was destroyed and an adjoining house was much damaged. The houses belonged to the Acme company.

Lester Mertz and family occupied the house destroyed. He had been warned of danger from the expected blast and advised to move his family and furniture. He acted on the advice, and procured a house on York street, and had returned in a car to see about the removal of his furniture when the blast was fired. The effect of the blast was the total wreckage of the house Mertz had occupied. Falling stones crashed through the roofs and floors, even shattering the floor above the cellar. Nearly all the furniture, household utensils and other articles in the house were ruined. An adjoining house, also owned by the company, had one end badly wrecked. A huge rock, weighing fifteen or twenty tons, was loosened by the blast and rolled down upon the state road and rested not far from the West Short track. Fortunately no one was injured, although Mertz and members of his family were in the car returning to the house which was wrecked in order to remove the furniture.

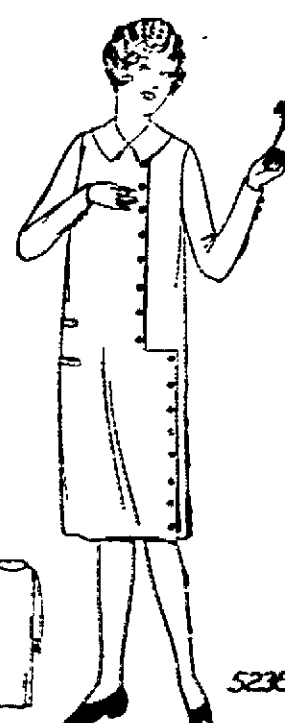

The blast was in a new section of the quarry and the danger had been anticipated, but evidently no such serious consequences had been looked for.

Illinois Ready For Chicago

Zupke Says Dillal Has Found Themselves and Thinks They Will Beat Chicago—Says Grange Is as Good as Ever.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 3.—"We've found ourselves. I think we'll beat Chicago now."

This was Bob Zupke's last word to the East as he boarded a train with his Illinois team, following its startling decision over Pennsylvania, until that moment one of the big timers of Eastern football.

"We came back, all right," he stated with evident relief. "I might say that Grange did, too. Until Saturday, he hadn't been the same man since the beating he took at Minnesota last year. But against Pennsylvania he looked as good as ever. That means plenty of trouble for our remaining conference rivals. I don't suppose it is necessary for me to warn them, however. They probably know it already."

With these few, well chosen words, Zupke just about called the turn on the Illinois team as it stood today. It wasn't a good football team two weeks ago. It is now. In fact, on Saturday's run of play, the Illinois probably were as good as any outfit the country over.

Grange probably was a trifle fast, a little more certain of himself than in any previous game this season. Yet the answer goes well beyond Harold, who might be said to be some one to go beyond.

It went, in fact, all the way to an almost perfect Illinois team of eleven men, with an endless string of functioning substitutes. Grange did the running, the rest of the Illinois did the trail blazing. The writer hasn't seen better interference since the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame dismantled.

It was so good that Grange, after taking three or four preliminary strides, would come to a complete stop, wait for two of the backs to smash the end, then cut behind the blocking of either Britton or Daugherty. The fact that he could afford to dally behind the line meant only one thing. That the Illinois line was playing foolproof football. Its particular emphasis on the work of the tackles, Mariner and Brown, to say nothing of the ends, Kassel and D'Ambrosio.

Grange gets the bouquet, Daugherty and Britton a pair of boutonnieres. The rest of them rate a lily each.

Last Night's Fights.

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over George Levine, California, ten rounds; Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

Philadelphia—Denny Bass, Philadelphia, knocked out Lew Mayers, Baltimore, in second round; Willie Davies, Charlotte, Pa., defeated Marty Gold, Philadelphia, ten rounds.

Delaney is in Good Health.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 3.—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., contender for the light heavyweight championship, planned to return to his home today after having refuted claims that his physical condition was such that he would be unable to meet Paul Berlenbach for the title on December 11. Delaney, recovering from a recent operation, was declared to be in sound physical health, following an examination by his physicians.

Dempsey Signed to Meet Wills

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, has signed to defend his title against his most persistent challenger, Harry Wills. It will be Dempsey's first defense of his crown since his memorable battle in 1922 against Luis Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

Wills in Exhibition

Harry Wills, who has signed articles to fight Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship, recently boxed a four-round exhibition bout for the American Legion, at Chicago.

Gloom Finds Favor With Grid Coaches

These football coaches are cagey birds.

None of them will admit that he has high-class material. There is a method in their attitude. By telling the natives his material is bad, a coach has an out in case of a disastrous season.

On the other hand, if his team turns out to be a winner, praise will be heaped upon the gridiron mentor for developing a great team with little to work on.

A. A. Stagg was the father of this thought and got away with it for years in Chicago. Other coaches copied the idea and now this gloomy stuff has become chronic among our best-known coaches.

Captain Harold Griffin of Iowa Football Team

Harold Griffin is captain of the Iowa football team and is the biggest man on the squad. For a player weighing 235 pounds he is very active and fairly speedy. Griffin is twenty-one years old and is a graduate of the Sioux City high school. He is noted for being an accurate snapper back of the ball. His weight gives Ingwersen, the Iowa coach, much bother. When the mentor attempts to prove that his line is light and not a huge "corn-fed" aggregation, Griffin piles up the average so that the Iowa forward wall seems composed of giants.

The Iowa leader is a good student in the law school. His activities outside of the curriculum are many. To run a dance hall would keep the average man busy, but Griffin does that and finds it easy to keep order. Last year he did not dance well, as he had a broken foot. His team gives promise of being one of the leaders in big ten this year, and he is a valuable aid to Coach Ingwersen in drilling the candidates.

Saw Glory Slip Away

Ted Lyons, White Sox pitcher, saw a no-hit game slip out of his grasp after two men had been retired in the ninth inning of the second game of a double-header in Washington. After he had retired 25 men without a bingle being made off him, Bob Veach cracked out a single to spoil the beautiful performance. Lyons struck out five. An unusual feature about the pitching stunt was that Lyons hurled against 18 Washington players. Manager Harris sending in a number of youngsters when it was a foregone conclusion the game was lost.

Sporting Squibs

Nick Allen, manager of the St. Paul American association ball club for the past two years, has been engaged to play the Saints next year.

Stuart Hoen, southpaw of the Tulsa Western league team, has been sold to the St. Louis Americans.

Nebraska's football team evidently had heard of "Red" Grange and studied him. That perhaps is what comes of concentrated adulation. Football is for eleven men on a side.

American colleges have contributed a good deal more than football to the advancement of the world, but it is the football hero who gets most of the public attention.

Princeton has uncovered a punter capable of averaging close to 50 yards in Frank Lea '23. The Tigers, like Harvard, are having a scarcity of real punters. A converted lineman is the best the Crimson can produce.

E. M. Norris, Columbia university sophomore, is looked to be the successor to W. F. Kopplisch, captain and star last year. Norris is having his first season with the varsity, but is a triple-threat in the backfield and a natural athlete.

London has sold Third Baseman Walter Sandquist to the St. Louis National league club. He has been doing fine work for the Tecumsehs.

Georgia School of Technology has a substitute tackle who stands six feet eight inches in his stocking feet and weighs just 238 pounds. As a rule, such big players do not make good in football.

C. O. Gill, Yale '28, captain and end of the varsity team that year, has a son on the Yale varsity squad, and one Phil is Andover academy squad this fall.

Jack Dempsey has become an amusement promoter. His next fight may not come under that head.

Manager George Sisler denied a report that he had admitted his eyes were giving him trouble again.

The highest run ever made in straight-rail billiards was the 3001 made by Wallace Phares in 1915.

Chrysanthemum hair on the football player is at least pleasant to look at than the cauliflower ear on the practitioner of the so-called manly art.

And one of the greatest traffic problems in the city is the sign.

There is a generation growing up in this country which regards any assertion that Mr. Dempsey is a boxer as burlesque.

WHO OWNS WRECKED DODGE AUTOMOBILE?

On October 11, a Dodge roadster was found overturned and badly wrecked near the Reformed Church at Ulster Park and was towed to Ross Neher's garage in Port Jervis, where it is awaiting an owner. The license number is 2A-32-25. Mr. Neher has taken the matter up with the state license bureau but so far has been unable to obtain any reply to his inquiries as to who that license number had been issued to. It was reported at the time the car was found that the driver had been badly hurt and had been brought to a hospital in Kingston, but inquiry at all of the hospitals here proved that no one had been brought to a hospital around that time.

CLARK REPORTED TO BE INTERESTED IN BROOKLYN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Pittsburgh, Nov. 3.—Rumors which have trailed Fred Clark since he joined the Pirates last season as assistant manager today credit him with negotiating for a part interest in the Brooklyn Dodgers, although the reports were not confirmed. The report was that interests associated with the late Charles E. Ebbett had decided to withdraw from baseball and that this has opened the way for Clark to purchase part of the club and become its manager.

Most men become so ACCUSTOMED to the watch they have been wearing for years that they seldom realize that their social and financial status has outgrown the old watch. It may have been a precious possession when originally bought, but today it is probably far below the quality standard maintained in the things you buy for personal use. Why not surprise your loved ones with a gift of a beautiful new up-to-date watch? No other gift will be more appreciated. Our exhibit of superb creations in watches is complete with the very latest models. All standard makes. Come in and see them. Shown in a range of designs and values—for men, women, boys and girls.
